Appearance

The Absolute Being was a gigantic man with long silver hair, pale ivory skin, and blank yellow eyes. He wore silver robes with light brown armor on his shoulders and chest, and a tall light brown hat.

Personality

The Absolute Being was a cruel and self-centered individual who cared very little for his creations and saw them only as tools for his own purposes. He was also careless, as he clearly never considered the possibility that the Rulers would rebel against him and only ever implanted a fail-safe inside Ashborn, which ultimately failed to accomplish its intended purpose.

History

At the dawn of time, when light and darkness was all that existed, the Absolute Being split the light to create the Rulers and split the darkness to create the Monarchs. As the Monarchs were born to destroy the world and the Rulers were born to protect it, it wasn't long before they engaged in a devastating war with each other.

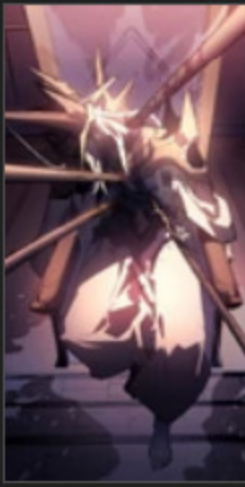

After eons of endless war with no victory in sight, the Rulers asked the Absolute Being to give them the strength to extinguish the Monarchs for good and finally put an end to the bloodshed. However, the Absolute Being did not reply and it was at that moment that the Rulers realized that their war with the Monarchs was mere entertainment to him, and that the Absolute Being did not want the war to end.

This fact along with the realization that the war would never end as long as the Absolute Being was alive led seven of the eight Rulers to rebel against their god. Ashborn, the last and strongest Ruler, was the only one who remained loyal to the Absolute Being and tried his best to stop them, but they easily defeated him and left him for dead. Now with no one left to oppose them in their revolution, the Rulers marched into the throne room and speared the Absolute Being to death. Ashborn would later find the god's corpse still sitting on his throne, with the Rulers' swords sticking out of his chest and neck.<sup>[1]</sup>

Abilities

As a god, the Absolute Being was the most powerful individual in all of existence and was able to create life, both inorganic and organic, from nothing. He was also able to create objects with otherworldly powers, such as the Cup of Reincarnation. However, despite how much power he possessed, the Absolute Being seemed to be incapable at using it in battle and as a result, the Rulers were able to kill him without much of a struggle.
